

To help you complete your tax return for the 2010/2011 financial year

WealthFocus Investment Advantage

Structure

When you made your initial investment in one or more investment options, you were issued with one unit in Perpetual WealthFocus Investment Advantage.

The cost base of your unit is equal to the amount of your original investment, plus any additional amounts invested. A partial withdrawal reduces the cost base of your unit. Non-assessable amounts distributed to you may also reduce the cost base of your unit.

Benefits

WealthFocus Investment Advantage has three capital gains tax benefits that are reflected in your Capital Gains Tax Statement:

- Switching – there are no capital gains on switches therefore switches will not be shown on your Capital Gains Tax Statement.
- Partial withdrawals – while your Capital Gains Tax Statement will show all partial withdrawals made during the financial year, there are no capital gains until your cost base is reduced to zero.
- Acquisition date – the capital gains tax discount applies to all capital gains made from 12 months after the date of your initial investment.

How to use this guide

When using the information in your Capital Gains Tax Statement and this guide, please note:

- Your Capital Gains Tax Statement and this guide assumes you are an Australian resident individual taxpayer, that your investment in the Fund is held on capital account and that you did not receive a cash refund of financial adviser commission.
- If your Capital Gains Tax Statement is for a joint account, it includes 100% of the capital gains or losses of the joint account, and does not split them between the joint account holders.
- Your Capital Gains Tax Statement provides information on realised capital gains or losses as a result of your withdrawal(s) and any capital gains resulting from the receipt of tax deferred components from distributions.

- Your Capital Gains Tax Statement does not provide information on any capital gain components from distributions. These are shown in your Australian Tax Statement.
- If you acquired your unit prior to 1 July 1999 you can use the 'indexation method' to calculate your indexed cost base and hence your indexed capital gain. This may result in a different capital gain(s) to that shown on your Capital Gains Tax Statement.

You should refer to 'TaxPack 2011' and the 'TaxPack 2011 supplement' when completing your tax return for the 2010/2011 financial year. These publications have more detailed instructions on how to complete the 2011 tax return for individuals and 2011 tax return for individuals (supplementary section). These publications are available free of charge from newsagents or the ATO – download them from the ATO website www.ato.gov.au/publications or phone 1300 720 092.

Obtain your own tax advice

The information in this guide is not taxation advice. It only relates to your investment in Perpetual WealthFocus Investment Advantage and is not a complete guide to completing your tax return.

We recommend you seek professional help when completing your tax return. If you have questions about your tax return please consult your tax adviser or the Australian Tax Office (ATO). We are not able to provide you with tax advice. If you have any questions about your investment, your Capital Gains Tax Statement or this guide, please phone or email us using the contact details on the following page.

About your Capital Gains Tax Statement

- Capital gains or losses will be shown in the 'Discount Method' column if you have held your unit for at least 12 months.
- Capital gains or losses will be shown in the 'Less than 12 months' column if you have not held your unit for at least 12 months.
- Full withdrawals will generally result in a capital gain or loss.
- Partial withdrawals will only result in a capital gain once the cost base of your unit has been reduced to nil.
- If your Capital Gains Tax Statement shows a capital gain with a Withdrawal date of 30/06 and the corresponding Withdrawal amount is blank, then this is a capital gain resulting from the receipt of a tax deferred component from distributions once the cost base of your unit has been reduced to nil.

Completing your tax return

Follow the steps below to complete item 18 of your 2011 Tax return for individuals (supplementary section).

1. Did you have a capital gains tax event during the year?

If your Capital Gains Tax Statement shows a capital gain or loss, or if you have a capital gain or loss from any other source, print X in the YES box at label G of item 18 of your tax return.

2. Calculate 'Total current year capital gains'

- Add together all capital gains 'Discount method' and all capital gains 'Less than 12 months' from your Capital Gains Tax Statement.
- Add to this any capital gains received from distributions from your Australian Tax Statement.
- Add to this any capital gains from other sources.
- Write the 'Total current year capital gain' at 18H of your tax return.

3. Calculate Net capital gain or loss

- Add any current year capital losses shown on your Capital Gains Tax Statement to any other current year capital losses you have made from other sources.
- Subtract your current year capital losses from your 'Total current year capital gains' (calculated above). You can choose which capital gains are reduced by the losses. Generally, it is better to reduce the capital gains 'Less than 12 months' first.
- Subtract any net capital losses carried forward from prior years against your remaining current year capital gains. Again, it is generally better to reduce the capital gains 'Less than 12 months' first.
- If you still have a gain, any 'Discount method' capital gains from your Capital Gains Tax Statement and from any other sources that remain after subtracting the current year and carried forward prior year capital losses can be reduced by the CGT discount (50% for individuals and Trusts and 33⅓% for Complying Superannuation Funds). Record the net capital gain at label 18A.
- If you have a loss, record the net capital losses available to be carried forward to later income years at label 18V.

The Capital Gains Tax schedule

The ATO's Capital Gains Tax schedule must be completed if you are lodging your tax return electronically and if one of the following apply:

- your total current year capital gains, including capital gain components from trust distributions, are greater than $10,000
- your total current year capital losses are greater than $10,000.

This schedule is to be attached to your tax return at lodgement.

When to disregard your Capital Gains Tax Statement

Please disregard your Capital Gains Tax Statement if the capital gain or loss relates to a transfer or if you acquired this investment as a result of a transfer:

- from a deceased investor
- from the legal representative of a deceased investor
- under a court order relating to the breakdown of marriage
- to a lender when the investment is being used as security
- from a lender when the investment was used as security.

This information was prepared and issued by Perpetual Investment Management Limited ABN 18 000 866 535, AFSL 234426, part of the Perpetual Group (Perpetual Group means Perpetual Limited ABN 86 000 431 827 and its subsidiaries), as general information only and is believed to be accurate at the time of compilation. The information in this guide is based on information published by the Australian Taxation Office. No company in the Perpetual Group, nor the directors and officers of companies in the Perpetual Group, nor Perpetual Investment Management Limited in its capacity as responsible entity of the funds, make any representation or warranty as to the accuracy, reliability, or completeness of material in this document. Except in so far as liability under any statute cannot be excluded, companies in the Perpetual Group and directors, employees and consultants of companies in the Perpetual Group, do not accept any liability (whether arising in contract, tort or negligence or otherwise) for any error or omission in this material or for any loss or damage (whether direct, indirect consequential or otherwise) suffered by the recipient of this information or any other person. The tax information contained in this document is not tax advice and should not be relied upon as such. You should consider whether the information is suitable for your circumstances and we recommend that you seek professional advice.

Further information

Adviser Services 1800 062 725

Investor Services 1800 022 033

Email investments@perpetual.com.au

www.perpetual.com.au